Abstract

The present invention relates to reliable and accurate techniques and devices for detecting and indicating temperature-related conditions and events associated with various items such as foods and medicines.